

BLACK TEA

Also known as Red Tea in China or Qi Hong

The most popular class of tea outside of Asia is the second most popular tea in the world. Known as black tea, the Chinese originally referred to this as red tea. The color of tea was based on the liquor of the tea, not the leaf. Black tea is not fermented, it is oxidized. Complete oxidation creates this truly remarkable class of tea. If you're a classic tea drinker, you'll want to experience our extensive selection of black loose leaf teas.

GREEN TEA

The manufacture of green tea has long been the prerogative of China. The tradition of ancestral techniques - which varied from region to region, or even from village to village - still persists to this day. The traditional methods produce a quality of tea which is remarkable for the delicacy of its aroma, the fine presentation of the leaf and the flavor of the liquor. The methods of manufacture may vary greatly in detail according to the region or country where the teas are made.

PU-ERH TEA

Pu-erh is the only fermented tea primarily from the Yunnan and Sichuan provinces of China. It can be made either as a loose-leaf tea or compressed into cakes for aging. The cakes were originally made to reduce the bulk for transporting for export. Pu-erh teas are known for their healthy properties including lowering cholesterol and preventing so-called bad cholesterol from forming in the arteries. Chinese people drink Pu-erh after a heavy meal to aid with digestion and the metabolism of fats. Chinese women drink Pu-erh to stimulate weight loss. You can re-steep Pu-erh multiple times with no loss of flavor.

WHITE TEA

White tea in its original pure form consists of only the tender, unopened buds of particular varieties of China bush tea plants that are cultivated especially for this class of tea in Fujian Province on the eastern coast of China. In the best of years, the production of white tea is small. The manufacture of white tea is an ancient process that predates all other tea manufacture.

CHAI

Chai is a delicious mixture that is blended with tea, rooibos, coffee or cocoa to create a delicious spicy concoction. Mainly made with boiling milk. Cardamom, cinnamon, ginger, cloves, pepper, mace and nutmeg are the primary spices used. Chai is sold everywhere in India, in the streets, on trains by chai-wallahs, or roving tea sellers.

- ☐ Almond Silk Chai - $5.50 oz
- ☐ Masala Chai - $5.50 oz

MATE

Pronounced MAH-TAY. While not a tea, Mate is often known as the “tea of the Jesuits” or “Brazilian Tea”. Mate is an infusion that is drunk in South America especially in Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay and Southern Brazil. Mate is very much like caffeine in the body but with an extra kick. Not recommended for before bedtime.

- ☐ Citrus Mint - $5.50 oz
- ☐ Tuscan Blood Orange - $5.50 oz

ROOIBOS

Pronounced ROY-BUS. Regarded as the national drink of South Africa, this red “tea” is made from the Rooibos plant - a bush growing about five feet tall. Enjoyed by the people of South Africa for over three hundred years, the Rooibos has been cultivated and marketed since the 1930s. The harvest takes place in South Africa during the first three months of the year which are the summer months in South Africa. The red color comes from the oxidation that takes place during the time the chopped and crushed stems are heaped in mounds and sprayed with water. Rooibos is naturally caffeine free and a great alternative to traditional tea.

- ☐ Butterfly Kisses - $4.50 oz
- ☐ Harvest Moon - $4.50 oz

ABOUT FEZZIWIG'S

FEZZIWIG'S originated in historic Lebanon, Illinois in 2007. The store is named for Ebenezer Scrooge's boyhood employer in Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. Dickens made Lebanon his only overnight stay in Illinois when he traveled by riverboat as far west as St. Louis in 1842. Dickens wrote a chapter of his book American Notes about his overnight stay at Lebanon's historic Mermaid House Inn and his walk about Lebanon the morning after his stay.

In 2015, Fezziwig's opened a larger store in nearby O'Fallon and in 2018 opened a boutique store back in Lebanon. Both stores sell the same teas and tea accessories in addition to a great selection of balsamic vinegars, extra virgin olive oils and gourmet foods and décor accessories. ## BOTANICAL & HERBAL BLENDS

Fruits, flowers, roots and herbs are used in the foods, drinks and medicines of just about every culture. Mild-tasting infusions of wild herbs and flowers are often served before a tea ceremony to cleanse the palate and the soul before the tea is served. Our award winning blends integrate the world's culinary and folk traditions with contemporary taste, gourmet spirit and expert blending techniques. They do not contain any tea leaves but are formulated to be prepared like a tea. Fezziwig's botanical blends offer a wide range of natural flavors and are hand-crafted in small batches using only the finest ingredients. Our botanical blends represent the highest level of quality, freshness and artisan skill. All of our botanical and herbal blends are caffeine-free.
